"For although we have no hand in it," continued the speaker, "although we may never recover and be able to properly present our side of the case, yet justice must be done us, and will be done us, even in the presentation of the other side. For human nature is constituted of many elements, some bad, others good. Prejudice, malice, hatred, and all uncharitableness are part of it; but there is also admiration. Of this quality it is impossible for us wholly to divest ourselves. It comes out in spite of us; it manifests liself in our most malignant productions; it shines through the veil that our evil passions throw over it; and posterity reads the account otherwise than it was intended to be read, and accords honor where amor is due. Troy fell; its walls lay in ashes; its people were put to the swood; the lidad was written by a Greek from the accounts that came down to him from the Greeks themselves, and it was written to celebrate the deeds and prowess of his countrymen. And yet the great, heroic name of the Trojan war is the name of Hector. Carthage perished; the city passed away; its commerce was no more; its people disappeared from the face of the earth; that proud and optient civilization was as utterly destroyed as when a man is slain, his body burned, and the ashes scattered to the four winds. The history of Carthage has been gathered from the accounts of the destroyers themselves. And yet the name of Hannibal remains the great name of the Punic wars. It is useless, he said, for the pessimist to say that because we lost we will not be done justice in history. He believed of a member of the House, and had advised them not to answer any further questions before the committee. They all followed the advice of their attorneys as did Mr. Hollenbeck, who was not or the stand last night. The committee then went into executive session. The Senate chamber was crowded while the committee in open session attempted, from 7:30 to 9 P. M., to examine witnesses. The witnesses did not decline to tell the names of their counsel, and their replies showed that eminent lawyers had been engaged in the case. The members of the House Investigating Committee were present, on invitation, to-night, and they were requested to ask questions, but none of them took any part.

Senator Garfield asked: "Do you decline to answer questions because your attorneys say this committee has no jurisdiction in this case and have so advised you?" The reply was in the affirm ative, and the witness was excused. Each witness was told that he was held unde service by the committee, and should report to-morrow night at 7:30, or sooner, if

HICKS-BEACH ON BRITISH NAVY. Criticism of Canada With Reference to National Defence.

LONDON, January 19.-Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at Bristol totday, ridiculed the notion of providing granaries, as had been suggested in some quarters. He said he was convinced that the British navy was strong enough to hold its own, and in any war England might have, many friends would be ready to supply many friends would be ready to supply corn.

Referring to the budget estimates, he said these would show that the government was fully alive to keeping up the standard of the army and navy; though he declared, it was not creditable to Canada or fair to English tax-payers that such a Colony should contribute practically nothing to the naval defence of the empire. He hoped Canada would soon turn her attention to this matter, adding that he was convinced that if she did not, the day would come when she would have "a rude awakening, which would be entirely her own fault."

Robledo and Others Demand That Cortes Be Summoned.

MADRID, January 19.-The address to the Queen Regent, signed by Senor Romero Robledo and others (in pursuance of a decision reached on Sunday last at meeting of Senor Robledo and his friends) is a mild-toned document, disclaiming responsibility for the "infraction of the Constitution by the government's un-precedemed action in changing the gov-ernment of the Antilles without the co-operation of the Cortes."

The signatories declare that they are aware of the difficulties surrounding the government, but consider it their duty to demand that the Cortes be summoned.

OF MANCHESTER, ON TRIAL. MR. NOBLE WEDS MISS MANN.

The Richmond Councilman and Southside Lady Marry-Children's Happy Time-Entertainments, Past, Present, and Future.

Hanover County Court is engaged at present in the trial of the case of Joe Hill, the negro who shot David Dangerfield and William Moody, two negroes from Manchester, at Doswell's Station, in July last, Moody recovered from the wound, but Dangerfield died the next day after the shooting occurred. As soon as Hill saw the mischief he had done he fled up the railroad track and made his escape. He was captured about two months ago, however, in Maryland and brought back to Hanover county.

Dr. Lawrence Ingram, of Manchester, who was called to see Dangerfield, and who took the ball from his body, and Captain James A. Lipscomb, Chief of the Manchester police force, went to Hanover Courthouse yesterday as witnesses. Dr. Ingram took with him the bullet which did the deadly work, and described to the jury the nature of the injury inflicted by it. Captain Lipscomb bore testimony as to the reputation of Moody and Dangerfield as peacable citizens. The Doctor and Chief of Police returned to the city last night. At 3 o'clock, when they left the court-house, all of the witnesses had not been examined. Hill is on trial for murder.

HAPPY LITTLE FOLKS.

There was a happy gathering of little folks at the residence of Mr. Julian C. Snellings, on Porter street, last night, yesterday, and she took a very graceful and unselfish way of celebrating the birthday. She invited a number of her little girl friends and playmates to se her, and a right merry time they had. There were no bad boys nor good ones either, to spoil everything, and the girls played from 7 to 9 o'clock to their heart's
